

Finch DaaS News gives users access to a global feed of licensed sources of news enriched with Finch Computing's proprietary natural language processing (NLP) technology. These sources include more than 21,000 premium news sources in 25+ languages from 160+ countries; 2.7 million online sources from 235+ countries in nearly 100 languages; and more than 3 million articles every day. Users receive the original article, source metadata, as well as a refined document that is fully enriched with the entities mentioned, geospatial coordinates, key phrases, topic vectors and sentiment.

FinchDaaS: An Overview

Finch Data as a Service (DaaS) is a real-time, enriched feed of user-curated content based on keywords, entities and more. Leveraging Finch Computing's natural language processing (NLP) expertise and our proprietary approach to identifying and understanding entities in huge volumes of streaming or static unstructured text, the Finch DaaS suite of products helps government agencies, companies and organizations make better use of their informational assets - starting the moment they acquire them. Part of the Finch DaaS product suite, Finch DaaS News delivers rich insights to customers interested in understanding how to leverage news content.

FinchDaaS News Is:

Customizable: Users receive a curated feed of only the content they want – from the sources they want, from the regions or time of day they want, addressing the topics they want, with only the entities they want to see.

Accurate: A real-time feed of news data that is transcribed and enriched by a proprietary Natural Language Processing (NLP) platform, Finch for Text, which performs high-quality entity extraction, disambiguation, and enrichment.

Easy to Integrate: Assess the entities, industries and sentiment in the feed and integrate that data into existing analytics platforms.
